

Use of Information

This website uses any information voluntarily given by our users to enhance their experience on our site, to prepare improved future content based on the interests of our users.

As stated above, we may use information that users voluntarily provide in order to send out electronic newsletters and to enable users to participate in surveys and questionnaires etc. We may send out newsletters to subscribers on a regular schedule (depending on the newsletter), and sometimes we may send out special editions when we think users/subscribers might be particularly interested in something we are offering.

ELP Ireland never shares user data with any third parties, including advertisers, sponsors or partners. While we use tracking information to determine which areas of our site users like and dislike, based on traffic to those areas, we cannot track individual users' details, but rather, how well each page performs overall. This helps us continue to build a better service for you.

We will not disclose any information about any individual user except to comply with applicable Irish law or valid legal process or to protect the personal safety of our users or the public.

Sharing of the Information

This website uses the above-described information to tailor our content to suit our clients' needs. We will not share information about individual users with any third party, except to comply with applicable Irish law or valid legal process or to protect the personal safety of our users or the public.

Security

Our security and privacy policies are regularly reviewed and enhanced, as necessary, and only authorized individuals have access to the information provided by our customers.

Your Consent

By using this site you consent to the collection and use of this information by this website. If we decide to change our privacy policy, we will post those changes on here page so that you are always aware of what information we collect, how we use it, and under what circumstances we disclose it.